言語データを軸とした基礎研究、応用研究、産業界の連携
Industry-Academia Collaboration among Pure, Applied, and Commercialization Researches Based on Linguistic Data
September 27 (Wednesday): 9:30-17:00
Venue: Tsukuba International Congress Center (つくば国際会議場)

Abstract:
The purpose of this session is to provide opportunities with researchers from various fields to share recent trends of the study of language in industry-academia collaboration. Recent trends are that linguistics and its application fields have been becoming more and more inter-dependent. Thus, the "Trans-Border" or "Interdisciplinary" perspective is necessary. Specifically, the recent linguistic data for research is "big" and "contextualized". This session especially focuses on the use of Big Data on food culture from both academic and application points of view. The organizer hopes that the session will stimulate the possibility for uncovering future unexplored areas of research of language.

■Keynote Speakers:
Sachio Hirokawa (Kyushu University): Textmining
Hiroyuki Nishina (Saitama University): Applied Linguistics
Jun Harashima (CookPad Inc.): Industrial Big Data

■Invited Presenters:
Pedagogy & Globalization: George MacLean (Ryukyu University)
Computer-Assisted Teaching: Stout Michael (University of Tsukuba)
Textmining: Brendan Flanagan (Kyoto University)
e-Learning: Ai Nakajima (Tokyo University)

■The scope of Poster Presentation covers but is not limited to:
1. Linguistics
- Formal Linguistics
- Cognitive Linguistics
- Corpus Linguistics
- Data-Driven/Based Linguistics

2. e-Learning
- Collaborative Language Learning
- e-Learning
- Gamification
- Computer-Assisted Language Learning

3. Big Data Construction and Analysis
- Educational Big Data
- Textmining
- Data Mining

■IMPORTANT DATES
Abstract Submission deadline (200-300 words): July 15, 2017
  ●Proposals by young researchers and students are warmly welcomed.
